Building Memories

Containers by their very nature are for holding things. When we turn those containers into homes, they begin to hold furniture, people, and ultimately, memories

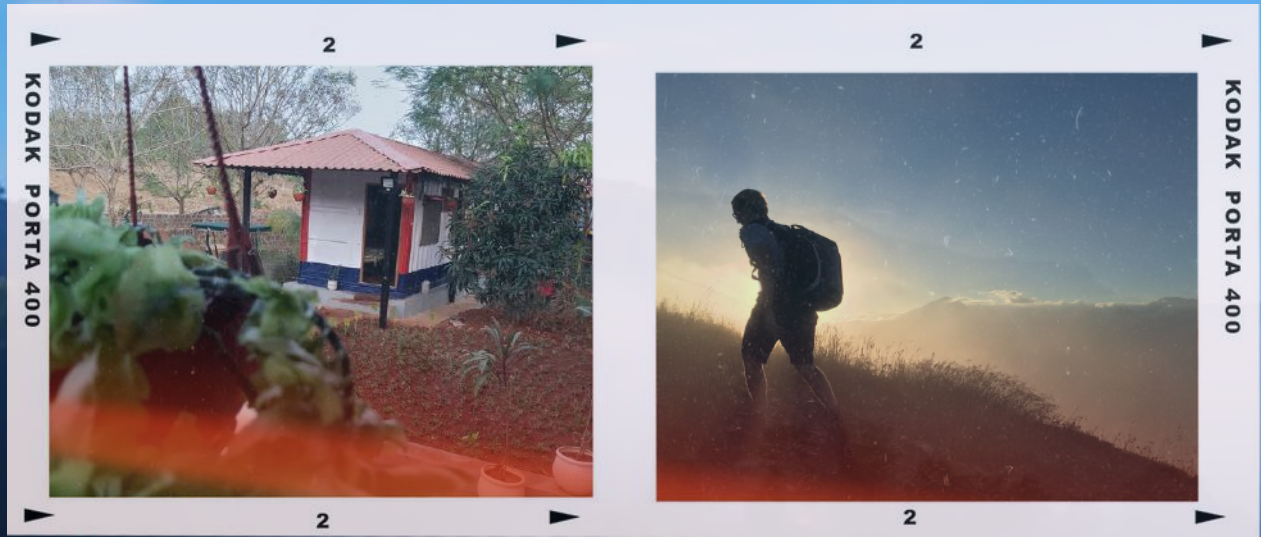

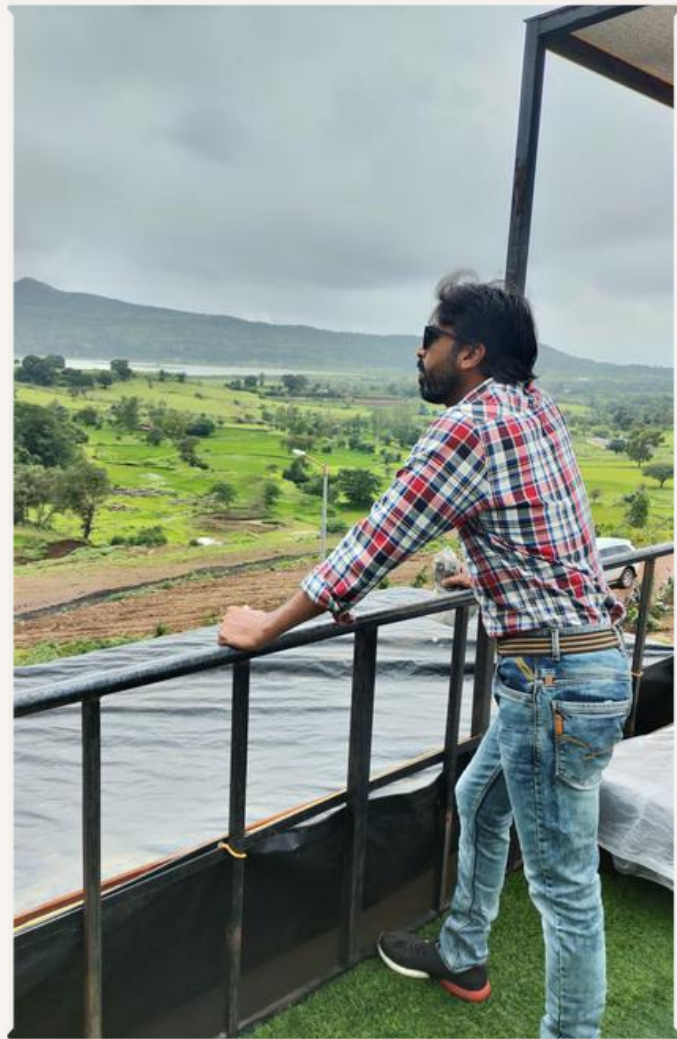

Hayajami

Every day, the sky shone a different color.

Could you see yourself
in a portable,
prefabricated house?

We'll let you be the judge - see why so many people are living the container life in 2021.

A photograph of a modern, single-story house constructed from red-painted shipping containers. The house features large, multi-paned windows and a dark roofline. A bicycle is parked on the right side of the building. The scene is framed by hanging green foliage at the top. A semi-transparent white box containing text is centered over the image.

Does this give you the inspiration to try out the container life for yourself?
